

Beowulf summary of multiple chapters. Summary of the book.

I Really like this book and it's most exciting bit about pieces of literature is that they always show the real life things, and characters of the real world. Beowulf is an of such literature and I not only like the poem but also have a great love for Beowulf the person itself - Specifically, I love the poem for its simulation of a typical society where there come times when tribulations make challenges and is needed to help intervene. On the other hand, my admiration for Beowulf is because he is the "savior" that comes in handy to help a helpless community couple times. So, this perspective directly makes Beowulf as a hero for he always intervened whenever people needed dire help. I can, therefore, sympathize with her because she portrayed how much she cherished her beastly son. In doing so, she deserves honor as depicted by this portion of the poem; It is always better to avenge the dear ones than to indulge in mourning. For every one of us, living in this world means waiting for our end.

Another fact that I really like me about the poem is the portrayal of Beowulf as a real person, who despite being a hero, still has human tendencies and characteristics like normal aging. This portrayal is unlike most movies or casts where the hero always exists as a superhuman.
